"The Fuzzy Squab"

The little bride was enthusiastically describing her new house-keeping to her mother. "And once," she said, "I cooked squabs for John! He loves them. But I won't do it often—they're too hard to dress. There's so much lint on them.—Woman's Home Companion for April.

Visitor—I've just come from the doctor's funeral, but I didn't see you there.

Hostess—No—my husband did not care to go, as funerals always upset him.

Visitor—Oh, well, if you never go to other people's funerals, I don't see how you can expect them to come to yours.—Punch.

The hen may not be well educated, but it doesn't take her long to scratch off a few lines—in the garden.

JOKE ON SECRETARY WILSON

Not Knowing French, He Joined in the Applause Given to Praise of Himself.

James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, knows pretty much all there is to know about trees, vegetables and soils; but he does not shine as a French scholar. Accordingly, he was at a disadvantage when he presided at a dinner at the Cosmos club, where many of the speeches were delivered in French. All the speakers were distinguished scientists, and they dwelt on subjects of an abstruse nature. Naturally, when their remarks were in French, they were puzzling to the secretary. Finally a particularly demonstrative Frenchman began to talk about fields and vineyards and how to improve them according to modern methods. He was applauded several times, and when he came to his peroration, which was full of long words and set off with many powerful gestures, the hand-clapping and cheering grew so boisterous that Mr. Wilson thought it incumbent on him to join in the demonstration of approval. As he got a late start in the hand-clapping, he was still at it when the rest of the assemblage had quieted down. "Do you know exactly what that fellow was saying?" asked a friend of the secretary, when the Frenchman had taken his seat. "No-o, not exactly," admitted Mr. Wilson; "but I applauded because everybody else was doing it, and I wanted to be polite." "He was saying," explained the friend, "that you were the best secretary of agriculture in the world."

NEED OF HASTE.

"What are you running for like that, Billy, with that big parcel?"
—"Hat for sister—running home—before it's out of fashion!"

STUCK TO HIS VESSEL.

Remarkable grit and tenacity were shown by the captain of the American schooner Holliswood, which was found recently waterlogged and helpless by the master of the Norwegian steamer Harold, in the Gulf of Mexico. The master of the Harold took off all the crew of the Holliswood and expected E. G. Walls to follow their example. But it was all to no purpose, and the Harold resumed her voyage. Three days later the battered Holliswood was sighted by the British steamer Parkwood. When that vessel came alongside, the captain could not stand from weakness, but he was as determined as ever to stick to the vessel. Finally the Parkwood took the Holliswood in tow and conveyed her safely to Galveston, Tex., greatly to the amazement of the inhabitants, who had heard of the abandonment of the vessel.

INDICATIONS.

"John," said Mrs. Binks, uneasily, the other night, "I am very much afraid that my bank is in a bad way."

"Oh, nonsense! my dear Maria—nonsense!" said Binks. "Why, it's one of the strongest financial institutions in the country. Whatever put that notion into your dear old head?"

"Well, it's very funny," said Mrs. Binks, still unconvinced. "They've just returned a check of mine for $25 marked no funds."—Harper's Weekly.
